The human design projector

Before modern times, the projectors have always been at the base of the leadership ladder. The only thing that really didn't care in those days it was intelligence. The strength and energy of the manifesters ruled the day and projectors have never been endowed to win that game. Projectors currently sit at the vertex of the natural leadership hierarchy. Their true role is to guide the types of energy (manifesters, generators and manifest generators) in a more efficient use of their energy resources. Projectors have an intrinsic capacity to understand others. They are the masters and to efficiently manage energy. It is because of their opening center that can take and read the energy of others. Little by little, over time, the ability to read Projectors' energy and recognize this energy give them wisdom to guide others in a more efficient use of their energies, gifts and talents. The projectors are also great to organize others and networking. They know how to bring the right people for work to make a specific task and even know how to keep harmony in the world. For these reasons the projectors are ideal for managers, administrators and guides for the modern democratic world in which we live. Projectors only have this innate, natural capacity to recognize the potential and talent of other people and to be able to offer a guide to them. Our world needs many different types of guides and mirrors of the projector group in this. Projectors, as type, lead the most variation inner authority than any of the other types of humans. You can meet emotional projectors, splendid projectors, self-projected projectors, mental and projectors projectors projectors. As a group they are cleverly equipped to read and drive any energy variation! The projector is the most energetic and closely like human being too. This is because of the nature of their aura. Our human aura represents the field of holistic energy that uniquely surrounds everyone and each of us. This aura is our personal electromagnetic signature and tells all living beings around us what we are all about. Our aura extends up to 3 meters around the entire circumference of our body. Having a halo also gives us the ability to read and interpret other people's aura. What a feeling is obtained when you like or not someone at the first meeting? This is your aura doing her job and advise you all the ways! Actually, it is the particular nature of the aura projector that gives the projector their name. This aura is, outdoor projects to others and is a projected energy up from other people. Projectors get noticed in other words! The projector's aura is very focused on other people meeting. Projectors donate attention to groups. They concentrate on one person at a time. The aura generator wraps the whole group around them. But the aura projector focuses on one person at a time. When you meet a projector, you meet someone who will concentrate on you as a laser beam! Most of the projector types have most of their idling centers. They are white in other words. This means that the projectors take and reflect more people's energy from these white centers. Not only reflect this energy also go back to amplify it! So it often appears that they are the energy dynamo! It is always important for projectors to notice the dynamic energy they feel when they are in a group of people. This is actually the dynamic energy of the group does not projector to generate its increased energy. This pseudo-energy feels projector will disappear as soon as the types of energy have left the group. When this happens Finding projectors no longer have energy for work; In fact, they are usually sold out! Projectors live in a world of busy people. Generators and generators demonstrate Make-up 70% of the World's population. Types of energy are the vast majority. So most projectors are never too far from the aura of a one type! Their white centers are taking, amplifying and reflecting this abundant energy almost constantly so the projector can, over time, become completely burned and may need a long pause or a period of rest from everyone. The projectors that ignore these levels of exhaustion and feel resentful because they cannot continue at the same rhythm as before usually to head towards a certain form of illness and physical breakage. Most adult projectors living in a budget environment of energy types will end and exhausted unless they really understand what it means to be a projector. Don't try to keep up with busy bees! Dured only to yourself: "What are they really committed to" is effective? "is efficient?" "is intelligent?" "Are you're just turning their wheels and looking occupied ... these types of energy need intelligent guides and the projector cannot guide them if they are exhausted with the attempt to continue all the time. The projectors have Need very rest because they assume and thus reflect so many energy during their day. A type of energy like the event generator or the generator will become exhausted at the end of the day and go to bed. A projector believes that the place to be exhausted frequently during an intense day and often may not have time to stop and rest. Then they carry out beyond that point to be tired. Because this has happened so often in their lives, some projectors find it difficult to stop at the end of the day and Go to bed. We are all taught and we said to be "DEERS" starting from a true age, so the adult projectors have a difficult time breaks King the model of this usual way and learned to be. The projectors need to go to bed one hour before how much I think I need it! They should simply rest, read, watch TV, listen to music, relax and relax. Due their body body to really eliminate and release the collection energy that turns around their system and settle, so they can sleep. Lying plan while rest helps 70% of our genetic functions to rest and regenerate, sleeping all by helping them. Ideally, a projector should try to be outside someone aura while they are resting! Otherwise their white centers will continue to take what is around them. Projector as a guide/projector cannot simply direct anyone. They have to understand and remember that their strategy for life is "Wait until you are recognized and invited ... only when the projectors are correct and wait for this invitation to give their undoubted intelligence and wisdom ... your life will be corrected. That being said, most projectors are usually more interested in other people than them, so they love to jump and try to help people without being invited! This is an admirable quality, but it is the projector that will end up feeling not appreciated, exhausted and bitter when they are not appreciated to do so. The familiar lament of the projector is: "If I am not recognized and invited?" "until they are recognized for the first time and invited by the right person. It is in the design of the projector to be noted, so they should trust this. The projectors are genetically coded through their aura to have Other people recognize and deal with them. So they just need to relax and wait for the right person to arrive. And they will do it! When the projector relaxes and remains silent, that Aura projector does all talk and bring the invitation of others. It is so important for projectors to understand that if they succumb to this fear of not being recognized and forces the rhythm with People, not only waste their valuable precious and limited energy resources, but the real opportunities are also lacking. The projector will never find what is right for them by jumping and trying to make things happen. A projector needs the right person in their own Not just any old person. As you know the projector if someone is right for them? Other people recognize, approach and invite them! Until it happens no one worth wasting that precious energy and wisdom of the projector. Some projectors have a consistently reliable way of making decisions and other authorities were very kind and delicate interiors. The truth is that some projectors can be very spontaneous with decisions; Others will have to wait a week before they can make a decision and others will have to wait longer, to have discussions with others and seek feedback before they come to any final decision with any clarity. So, it is even more critically important to wait for that recognition and the right invitation because "can greatly reduce the potential for bad decisions to a projector. The projectors should not take this "wait for the invitation to the ends! In fact, if the projector only uses this strategy to the major turning points in their lives you will pay huge dividends for them. These turning points are the moments in life when the projectors must honor their strategy of waiting to be recognized first and then invited. Only then should make a decision on the fact that the invitation is right for them. There is nothing more dangerous for projectors to be exhausted. You're not here to work. You're not. You're here to think. You're here to see. You're here to express an authority that provides external indications. You are here to organize energy. You're here to guide the energy. And you're here to be rewarded for that. You're not here to be the worker. You're not. "Ra Uru Hu as a teenager and young adult, I worked hard. I've been to most clubs, sports, activities and late hours at the office than anyone around me. I studied many systems, took all kinds of lectures and workshops and always seemed in training of some kind. I thrived the buzzing energy around me and often felt to be able to rest and relaxation to get the job. For 33 years, had experienced two major burn marks, depression, health crises and deconstruction of the life I had built from scratch. If in school, business, spiritual work or motherhood, I found myself coming to the same point over and over again, wondering why I was so tired, so depleted on multiple levels and unable to feel like there was enough room for me to feel and manage my energy. at that time, I was introduced to the human design and I began to learn what it meant to be a mental projector, one without engines, as defined, without a coherent internal source of energy to sustain my life. This was a radical concept to me and one that felt very true but also disturbing. It opened the realization that maybe I was not built to the level of work involved in many of the roles that I was playing, many of which were very convincing and important to me. He explained why I often felt so relieved and yet so empty when I was alone, because I thought I need others to have the energy and motivation to do anything and why I often could not understand how to stop when they are connected to roles and relationships that I have raised. Many of these relationships, roles and jobs were in healthy and sustainable reality for me? There are several types of projectors and some of them have defined engines (root, solar plexus or ego). These are energy projectors that need a way to move the energy within them. This usually involves connections or activities through relationships that provide an outlet. What I have found over the years of experimentation has been that they are not designed to support the production of Continue or a continuous work in any context. This seemed to apply in terms of material work, maternity, social interaction and attention to others. he had to let go many notions of what is normal and healthy from any external measurement and on my own my account mind, which it is fixed on the idea that I can be an independent, self-guided entity. Not so. Many projectors that meet Human Design are struck by the idea that headlamps are not here to work. Some may feel a sense of relief or recognition because it is true that feels. Many were so deeply affected by the world we live in, who are still trying desperately to find the value and worth of being a steady, productive force in life, through the career, the family's role and contribution to the community. Most I saw headlights function better do the work for shorter periods with ample time for rest and breaks. When there is a sacred definition, a feature we all share Projectors, no one else has any constant access to vital energy that is designed to respond to life and energy to invest in sustained, satisfying sacred energy is what work. which builds and creates life and nourishes our productivity. For a generator, this energy is fixed and reliable, although not always Ona. A you can always respond, though the answer can often be a Noa, which means that the energy is there, but it's not available. When this energy is available, they can engage with activities directly and put that energy use. The projectors are deeply interdependent with others and the environment in order to have sustainable energy for work. Can we have more energy some days than others, depending on who and what is available to us. Therefore, when it comes to an important role of work, work, or project, the strategy is to wait to be recognized and invited. In general, this means waiting to be formally recognized and encouraged, in since in order to support the work over time with success, a projector will have access to each other's needs and the invitation to drive the projectors can then direct the fuel or use it to create and build. The tendency is for projectors to run on the homogenized fuel all around us, which is often steeped in frustration. many job generators for the money. But money doesn't mean anything to a vital sacred force, sacred life force was designed to work for the satisfaction of the energy expenditure, whether the work is making a meal, run a marathon, performing surgery or cleaning a toilet, satisfying work is rooted in the experience of using the energy that becomes available when the answer is there, when it becomes the class A ona Ona. Although a turn is often used in a sexual way and that certainly applies, more generally describes a mechanical, dynamic energy, where the sacred energy in the body of a generator increases naturally to engage with something or someone. If generators can be paid for in this world, are success as a generator, which means feeling spent and satisfied. Health problems for projectors tend to result from fatigue and relationships that are not correct for the health problems for them. Generators tend to result from a job that is wrong for them or the lack of satisfying work. The gift of a projector is awareness, presence and seeing. And as a projector, if there are, if you know, you have a better chance of being seen. The projector has a special aura function. A you can draw the recognition when a projector is present because if it is present, you can not help but see in people around you, you can not help but focus on others. Others may feel this and if you are interested in what you are seeing, they will want to engage with you, that's the beginning of a recognition that opens Door for you to offer what is natural for you. The key here is that when the recognition comes first, then the penetration of projector awareness can be received. Many projectors will make and say too much for the recognition of gain or approval before, rather than let the energy come to Them. a instead of waiting, projectors tend to make reactive and available to others much more than it is natural for them. They then find that the experience is empty. No matter what they have accomplished. In addition, supporting productivity for recognition indicates the dynamic is built on an output power that the projector body is not designed to keep. Searchlights here must be exhausted. Exhaustion is a sign of non-self basic theme "sacral center, which is not knowing when it is too enough. This means not stopping when it's time to rest or when energy is not available, not pulling attention away when the interaction is actually over for us by not meeting our needs and limits. In short, the projectors can really struggle with healthy boundaries. The generators are designed to survive through the work they love to do, through the proper use of their energy. When a generator is completely spent doing a job they love to feel satisfied. Projectors survive through relationships and awareness. Once a relationship is established, they can be involved and work productivity, but it starts with being recognized in the relationship or role. If the projectors are fully spent, no matter what we have done or what recognition we have received, we feel exhausted, often in a way that obscures any real sense of satisfaction or success. Projectors are here to guide. The guide can provide projector is rooted in the aura that absorbs and penetrates. It is inherently relational. In terms of any dynamic business, or any relationship for that matter, it was designed to take into available energy and then penetrate the other, penetrating the dynamic with knowledge and guidance. Many projectors are able to be productive running on the powered fuel of beings around them. This is a recipe for productivity which is unsatisfactory and exhausting. Once again, we are not here to be exhausted. Most of life is work. It is energy expenditure. But it's also the awareness and being, which is the domain of the projector. You are in a situation where you are welcomed not only for what you do, but with the knowledge and guidance you bring? It feels as if the energy is available for you to work with? You are able to penetrate the situation through what you see? If we are not able to penetrate our consciousness, we can not be fully themselves in this dynamic. Some of these questions may seem immaterial, but aim at an energy awareness and experience that goes beyond words like waiting for a being invited. What does it mean? If you can experience what it means to you, you are on your way to a role that allows you to be who you are and care for yourself and your health. If you can get paid for what you are and what comes naturally to you, you feel your success. Or you may find that you survive through relationships or community who support you, rather than directly through the work that you do in a traditional sense. If you are at a turning point, a point of crisis or just starting to experiment, to investigate the roles you play (at work, at home, in the company) and study your relationships. The energy that feels good to you? Who do you really see? What roles that give space to work with and guide the energy? That's open to your awareness and guidance? Are you getting enough rest? It is recommended that the projectors to find a way to study. Having a system to penetrate and master gives projectors a module for their guidance and employment for their minds which can be very nutritious. No matter what type were receiving money for slavery is still slavery. I don't mean to make light of this. Our world is deeply affected enslave us. The survival Material is something that many of us claim to some extent. We often think that survival is a matter of money until our bodies break down and are forced to face that survival is rooted in the health of our bodies. It is often when we are faced with body breakdown, Psyche or Spirit that we are forced to question what Survive means. How do we really need? can we succeed in conditioned ways has been taught to function? a could Being other unique and creative ways for us to live our lives and make it materially in the world? materially? human design projector wait for the invitation
